

Ward's Marine Electric specializes in servicing the varied needs of the South Florida yachting industry. Owned and managed by first, second and third generation family members, this expanding business had outgrown its original 1950 building and commissioned SingerArchitects to design a building which would encompass warehouse, office and retail areas.

The 24,000 square foot, two-story structure sits on a tight one-acre site in downtown Fort Lauderdale. Though the site was small, the cost-effective method of tilt-wall construction was possible through careful planning and allowed the project to be completed two full months ahead of schedule.
